

Murat Sungur Bursa, CEO, Zorlu Energy Group

Murat Sungur Bursa, Chief Executive Officer, manages Zorlu Energy Group's domestic and international energy investments. Zorlu Energy Group of Companies operates in natural gas exploration and production, city gas distribution, electricity generation, operation and maintenance, and power plant EPC services. Mr. Bursa has over thirty years of work experience, including twenty-five years at Turkish governmental institutions in high-ranked posts such as undersecretary, general manager and director. He has widespread experience in environmental issues, international affairs, training, and development and implementation of multibillion-dollar earthquake rehabilitation projects. He is a graduate of Middle East Technical University with a B.S. in mechanical engineering and holds a Master of Business Administration from Ankara Gazi University.

Eva Sanchez, CEEMEA Senior Strategist, JPMorgan Chase

Eva joined J.P.Morgan's Emerging Markets Research team in July 1999 as a senior sovereign strategist and currently has responsibility for the coverage of Turkey, Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Israel. Between 1999-2002, Eva covered a wide range of Latin American countries, with a particular focus on Argentina, Mexico and Uruguay. Prior to J.P.Morgan, Eva was a sovereign analyst in the Latin America Research team at Salomon Smith Barney in New York. Eva holds a Master of International Relations from Columbia University and a degree in Economics from the Universidad Complutense of Madrid, Spain.

Ernest Stern, Partner, The Rohatyn Group

Ernest Stern is a partner in The Rohatyn Group, an asset management firm which invests exclusively in Emerging Markets. Before joining The Rohatyn Group in 2002, Mr. Stern was a Managing Director in the Office of the Chairman of JPMorgan as the senior client relationship manager for JPMorgan's activities in Emerging Markets. Prior to joining JPMorgan, Mr. Stern was at the World Bank for 23 years, where he served in numerous senior positions, including, from December 1991 through January 1995, as the Senior Managing Director in the Office of the President. As Managing Director, he had oversight of World Bank operations in South Asia, Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union; Finance and Private Sector Development and the Bank's Treasury operations and budget. Prior to joining the World Bank, Mr. Stern was Assistant Administrator for Program and Policies at USAID, where he also held several overseas posts, including in Turkey for 5 years. In 1971, Mr. Stern served as the Senior Staff Member of the White House Council on International Economic Policy. In addition to having served on numerous boards, Mr. Stern is on the Advisory Board of Corsair Capital, a member of the Group of Thirty and the Council on Foreign Relations.